"THE TIMES" AND THE PEOPLE, We regret exceedingly that a press of other matter has crowded out several intelligent communications expressive of the sentiments of the people on several important topics. Three of these communications severely censure Gov. Brown's action in the case of Jacob Henson, Jr.; that the lunacy commission business looked to the people like a loop-hole by which Henson was to escape his just desserts; hence the Kirby, Elizabeth.....

lates THE TIMES upon its increase of Musgrove, Mrs. Stephen..... size, the general news it contains and upon our "excellent communications and Neal, Elias editorials." We can assure our friends that we speak from the conviction that the rescue of this country from the hands of cormorants must come through the Democratic party.

Another esteemed correspondent takes the trouble to say that "everybody is Rhine, Rob't..... commending your management of THE | Ridgely, Mrs. Rufus...... TIMES. It is a clean, honest Democratic paper, besides THE TIMES has always | Shepherd, Thomas...... been fair to Senator Gorman."

Similar expressions of appreciation have been coming to us weekly and they go far in encouraging us to continue the good work-that of publishing a sound Democratic paper guided by an inspiration drawn from a life-long contemplation of Democratic principles and Democratic aims on questions involving the welfare of the people.

THE TIMES generally accompanying the order with an apology for not sending | Mary L. Moore..... for the paper sooner. Let the good work go on and we will endeavor to do our part in averting so severe a calamity as Republican domination in Maryland.

The Baltimore Sun and The News have been very severe in denouncing the lynching which occurred here Tuesday morning last. They grow particularly eloquent on the necessity of the law having its course. They denounce the affair as a brutal proceeding unworthy a civilized community. Had the Sun and News told all they knew about the frequent tardiness of the law in meting out justice to red-handed assassins, and the many subterfuges adopted for their release even after they have been fairly and faithfully tried and condemned, they would probably be doing the country some valuable service.

The people here who best knew Henson believed him sane and the several lunacy commissions sent to the jail for investigation of Henson's mental condition aroused the suspicion that a loophole would yet be created by which he would escape his just desserts. This is the whole matter in a nut-shell. Right or wrong the people here generally are not condemning the affair.

Walter Quintin Gresham, Secretary of State, died in his rooms at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C., at 1.15 o'clock Tuesday morning. Death was due to pleurisy, complicated by acute pneu monia and heart failure. Secretary Gresham's ancestors were among the early settlers of the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Gov. Hogg and Silver.

Chicago Times-Herald: There is a good joke on Goyernor Hogg of Texas. For years he has been a rip-roaring free silver man. Down in Texas he has the ear of the people, and as Colonel Sterrett says, they would burn a barn if Hogg told them to. Having educated his people up to the free silver idea by dint of speeches and writings Governor Hogg concluded to go down to New York recently and place some railroad bonds for a company in which he is interested. He found the capitalists of New York and Boston Ballot thoroughly acquainted with the natural resources of Texas. They admitted the richness of its soil, the favorable nature of its climate, the industry of its people, the fair prospect for the future, but they did not want any Texas railroad bonds "And why not?" asked the bewildered Governor.

"I will tell you why," responded one of the capitalists. "See this gold dollar? You want me to lend it in Texas; at the same time you are trying to put this Government in possession of a school of economists who promise to pay me back, not this gold dollar, but this," and her the capitalist produced a 50 cent piece. Governor Hogg saw the point and has been thinking about it ever since. The fact that he couldn't place his bonds has helped him to a clearer understanding of the relations existing between agitation and prosperity.

Following the opening production of he Comedy Season comes one of the brightest and most sparkling comedies from Van Moser, adapted by Thomas Hamilton for the English stage, entitled Our Regiment." It is in three merry acts, and is tilled with merriment from beginning to end. The visit of the Eighth Lancers to a village numbering among its residents several wealthy families, the members of which are pretty, bright girls just home from school, and happy in the idea of a mili-tary visit and ball to be given is the cause for much joy. A crotchety father forbids all participation in the festivities, but the intervention of a military-loving and strong-minded mama gives the girls the opportunity for quiet flirtation. he plot and counter plots are delightfully worked out, one scene of merri-
